

CONVENIENCE TRANSLATION - CONTRACT

Please note that the German version of this contract is legally binding.

Terms of contract for publications on the document server of the Georg-August-Universität Göttingen

I herewith give permission the University of Göttingen, represented by the Niedersächsische Staats- und Universitätsbibliothek Göttingen (SUB), to publish my work according to the terms of contract listed below and to offer it for free use on the Internet.

1. Non-exclusive (basic) right to publish

The University of Göttingen receives the non-exclusive (basic) right to publish the thesis electronically on the Internet and to archive it on its document server. Along with these non-exclusive rights of use the SUB Göttingen is permitted to offer cost-covering print-on-demand service provided that no third-party rights are infringed. All additional exploitation rights remain with the author. The registration of my work does not establish a legally binding claim for an electronic publication.

Users of the provided free online version are entitled to download documents, make digital copies and print a small number of copies for private and non-commercial use (§ 53 German Copyright Act¹).

The author herewith gives permission to license his work under the conditions of the Creative Commons Licence CC BY-NC-ND 4.0 International (Attribution-Non Commercial-No Derivatives) which allows the user to copy, distribute and transmit the work as long as it is attributed in the manner specified by him.²

2. Third party rights

I declare that by the publication of my resource and its components (for instance in case of cumulative, emerging dissertation texts), no rights of third parties are violated. I exclude the University of Göttingen from possible claims of third parties. The University of Göttingen is permitted to bar access to a publication if there is evidence that rights of third parties have been violated. In that case the University of Göttingen will contact the publisher immediately and inform him about the blocked access.

3. Long term archiving and transformation into other formats

The University of Göttingen is entitled to store the resource and its components in a long term archive and, if necessary, to convert it into other electronic and physical formats and to use them according to Article 1.

4. Transfer to libraries with national collection mandate

The University of Göttingen is permitted to make electronic versions available to the Deutsche Nationalbibliothek (DNB) via the SUB under the terms of the German Nationalbibliothek law which requires such submissions. Over and beyond this, the SUB is permitted to make documents available to the libraries operating under a national collection mandate such as the Specialised Information Services of the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft.³ These institutions will be granted the same rights to the documents as the University of Göttingen.

5. Withdrawal of the declaration of consent

A withdrawal of this declaration of consent is only possible with appeal to §42 UrhG (the work no longer conforms with the author's conviction).

I confirm that the supplied data and printed versions are in accordance with the original form of the publication which was approved by the department and that the appropriate institution has consented to the publication of the work.

If a curriculum vitae is included in the electronic version (PDF) I consent that it can be freely accessed.

Doctoral candidates of Medicine

I have received an invitation to my oral exam. I agree to give notice immediately to the staff of eDiss at the SUB in case of a change of date or if I am required to submit changes to my written doctoral thesis.

If I have not yet completed my State exam, I agree to promptly inform eDiss staff, as soon as I have taken and passed the exam.

¹ German copyright law and cognate laws, <http://www.bundesrecht.juris.de/urhg>

² <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/4.0/>

³ Information about Specialised Information Services: <http://wikis.sub.uni-hamburg.de/webis/index.php/Hauptseite>